

SHAWN GALEY

Shawn Galey, based in Singapore, is vice president and general counsel in the Asia-Pacific region for Brambles, an Australia-listed provider of transport equipment services. He is also responsible for regional government affairs and manages legal matters for Brambles' global M&A activities. He has broad international management experience, with specific transactional expertise in acquisitions, joint ventures, licensing and financing.

Shawn was previously managing director for Bloomberg Television Asia-Pacific, with responsibility for linear and non-linear content distribution, business development, new media and marketing. Before that, he was senior vice president for legal and business affairs at ESPN STAR Sports, and vice president and general counsel at CNBC Asia, where he oversaw business partnerships throughout Asia – including key tie-ups in China, India, Japan and Korea – as well as the start-up and operation of the MGM Channel for Greater China and Southeast Asia.

Earlier in his career, Shawn served for over ten years in legal, sales and business development capacities in General Electric's transportation and industrial silicones divisions. He was previously engaged in private law practice with Shearman & Sterling in New York, Reed Smith in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and Nishimura & Asahi in Tokyo.

Shawn holds a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering and engineering and public policy from Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and graduate degrees in business and law from Cornell University in Ithaca, New York.

Shawn was born and raised in western Pennsylvania and is a U.S. citizen and Singapore permanent resident. He and his wife Katherine have two children.
